TAFT CERTAIN

To be Nominee, Says Senator McCreary.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Senator McCreary said, in an interview today that Taft will be the Republican Presidential nominee. There is no danger of war between the United States and Japan, according to Senator McCreary, who is a member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

"The most prominent men of Japan, who have recently visited this country," said the Senator, "have assured us that Japan entertains only the best of feeling of friendship for America, and many Americans of prominence, who have visited the Mikado's empire lately, report that there is no sign of enmity against the United States on the part of the Japanese people. I do not believe there is any excuse for the war talk whatsoever. It does a great deal of harm."

WALKED IN SLEEP

And Thieves Got Combination of Safe.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 20.—A unique confession was made yesterday to A. F. Thomason, cashier of the National Bank of Hattiesburg, by James Harper and W. T. Smith, bank robbers, brought back from Seattle, where they were caught after a long chase.

Harper says the bank cashier walked in his sleep. He and Smith watched the bank for several nights, according to their confession, and frequently witnessed Thomason enter with the aid of his key door. They never dreamed that he was not in full possession of his senses until they saw him under an electric light with his eyes closed.

Then the robbers say they conceived a plan to enter the bank with Thomason and to gag him if he came out of his trance. They declare that Thomason gave them the combination to the safe, which they looted, and that they left, leaving Thomason asleep in the bank.

HOW TO COOK VEAL

SEVERAL DAINTY DISHES PREPARED FOR TWO PEOPLE.

Braised Cutlets à la Creole That Will Prove Appetizing—A Chafing Dish to Dispose of Left-Overs.

Cooking, The Endicott, New York.
Braised Cutlets à la Creole—Melt a tablespoonful of lard in a frying pan. Chop four small onions fine and let them fry for a moment in the hot lard. Then season four chops, or cutlets, with salt and pepper, dredge them in flour, and place them on top of the frying onion. When they have sizzled for a few minutes, turn them; and, at the expiration of another two or three minutes, add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a little chopped parsley, a threaded clove of garlic, a bay-leaf and some thyme. Let it simmer over the fire from time to time, until it has browned on all sides; then add a coffee-cupful of hot water to the pan, and let the water come to a boil quickly. At this point, remove it to the back of the stove, where it can do no more than simmer, and leave it for two hours. Remove the garlic and bay-leaf, garnish with freshly chopped parsley, and serve.

Perfection Stew—Much as many people object to the stew, or to any dish that savors of it, the cook who is willing to take some pains in preparing the viands for her table can serve a very stew in such a manner that the fact that it is a "stew" will never be suspected. To do this she must first make a white sauce by using a heating tablespoonful of flour and a gaudily proportioned piece of butter to a cupful of good milk, or cream. When this sauce has commenced to boil, she must take some thin slices of cold veal and lay them in it, adding half a dozen mushrooms, a clove, and a little minced parsley. Simmer until the meat has become heated through, when it is ready for the table.

Veal in Chafing Dish—The appearance of a chafing dish at supper, or even at luncheon, often adds materially to the delight of the repast, so if you have a chafing dish that can be called into service, here is a way to use it when you dispose of some left-overs from the roast of veal. To do this, melt some butter in the pan, and fry some chopped onions in it until they have browned nicely; then add a cupful of veal gravy, or white stock, and lay the slices of veal in it. Season with salt, pepper, and mushroom catup, and, at the end of two or three minutes, add a well-beaten egg, and serve immediately.

English Veal Cake—When so much of the roast has been used that it is no longer possible to get slices, there are still several methods by which it can be used in a most appetizingly. Purchase a few slices of cold veal, and two eggs, and you can serve one of the famous English veal cakes. Here is the recipe: Take about a pound of cold roast veal; remove all fat, etc., and chop it into small pieces. Grate a few onions and put into it alternate layers of cold veal, hard-boiled eggs, and boiled ham in slices, with chopped parsley and salt and pepper between each layer, until the mold is nearly full. Next, take some good stock and flavor it with tarragon, mace and pepper to taste. Pour this over the other ingredients until the mold is filled, and cover the bread. Bake it for half an hour, but do not use it until it has become so cold that it can be sliced neatly. Served with a garnish of crisp watercress, these slices of veal cake make a most acceptable hot-weather luncheon dish.

Russian Croquettes—Another mind-expanding dish will appear attractively to lovers of nice eating, known as "Russian croquettes." To make them, mince a pound of cold veal, and season it with pepper, salt, a little nutmeg and half a teaspoonful of grated lemon peel, and moisten with a sauce made as follows: Heat a copper-cup of oil, and add to the boiling point when add a slice of onion, a stalk of celery, a bay-leaf, half a dozen peppercorns, and parsley, thyme and mace. Do not let the mixture actually boil, but keep it simmering steadily for fully 15 minutes. Then strain, season to taste with salt and pepper, and thicken with a blend of flour and water. When this sauce is before prepared, roll some soft paste very thin, and, when the sauce and meat have been combined, shape a tablespoonful of the mixture into the shape of a croquette, and roll it up in a strip of the puff paste, pressing the ends together closely. Have some deep fat ready and fry the croquettes brown. Drain carefully, and cover with mustard, cress, or sorrel and bits of lemon. They must not be put on a cold platter nor kept standing, because, to be really delectable, croquettes should be served very hot.

Umbrella Cover as Hair Protector.—A woman who was the proud possessor of a hair of hair which reached well below her knees, every hair even and the whole one satiny length of golden brown, gave this secret of the beauty of her crowning glory. It certainly is an original scheme, to say the least. She took the cover of her silk umbrella (use for them at last), and each night after the dust of the day had been removed by a vigorous brushing, this cover was drawn snugly over the braid and securely tied. Thus the ends were kept unbroken and the hair untangled, no matter how much the woman might roll about when ill, when the hair must go for days often, unbrushed, if it is possible to braid it in two plait and saturate them daily with alcohol before even attempting to comb the least bit, the work will be accomplished in half the time.

Culinary Concretes.—When interrupted while frying in deep fat drop a dry crust of bread into the fat to prevent its burning.

When frying croquettes be sure to plunge the basket in hot fat before the croquette is placed in it.

This will prevent the middle of the back from being lifted out.

When roasting meat, to make the gravy nice and brown take a table-spoonful of sugar and melt it in a pan till it smokes, then add boiling water stir well and mix with the gravy.

Cracker and bacon soup is made in covering the tops of sausages, which should be well greased in melted butter. This makes a better covering than the dry crumpled dotted with butter and uses less of the latter ingredient.

For Embroidery Edges.

Many garments are spoiled by having the unembroidered edges torn and frayed by a careless laundry.

The garment can be made to last twice as long and many dollars saved by stitching around the scallops twice, this makes a strong, firm edge and does not detract from its appearance.

COLONIAL SOCIALS A FAD.
It Can Be Made a Success in Every Community.

There is one form of sociable which is warranted to be a success, since every one is interested in it from the start; this is the "colonial social." The room is divided into a large room, occupying no house except, for in every one something is tucked away which speaks of earlier days. The committee on decorations may hang the walls of the parlors with crossed swords, old muskets and flags, and portraits of Washington and other colonials. The tables and chairs of old mahogany, spinning wheels, and iron curiosities. Arranged around the wall may be long, narrow, tables draped with cheese cloth in blue and yellow, bearing old silver, brass candlesticks, snuffers, decanters, slippers, embroidery, fans and jewelry, with samples of old family portraits above. Each article should be labeled with the owner's name, the date of the manufacture, or use of the article, and any historical event in connection with it.

It is a good plan to have everything brought to the parlors early in the day and returned at the close of the evening. This is a good idea, as it is one of the interesting things about the sociable to see the quality of relics even the smallest town has hidden away.

For entertainment some one may sing some of the revolutionary ballads, or tell a curious event in family history, or read from old records. Or the hostess may speak on some topic as "Paul Revere's Ride" or "Dorothy Q." or some description of life in colonial days. Of course the whole affair is more delightful if the hostess at least can come in quaint old silk or cotton gowns, with tall combs and huge fans, and powdered hair.

To refreshments there should be punch, beer, port wine, brandy, cider, and perhaps doughnuts, or little spicy cookies. A great deal of fun can be had if old recipe books are hunted up and some of the things tried which are suggested there.

This sociable suggests one on the same lines, where a real New England supper is served at six, all the guests dressed in costume, and the same dishes which were served long ago. Afterwards the same entertainment may be provided as at the colonial sociable, with or without the pretty old dresses.

DRINKING AT MEALS.

Water Should Be Taken Only After Eating, Says an Authority.

Most physicians today will tell you to take any liquid, and least of all water, during meals. There are, however, two sides to the question.

Those with a tendency to gout or other diseases arising from excess of uric acid should avoid liquids until two hours, at least after eating.

For those without such a tendency there is no harm in drinking a moderate amount at the end of the meal.

Those who drink coffee should reason that the custom of keeping the coffee for the last course. Even when this prandial drinking is permissible, one should avoid excess. A little cold water in the mouth is often just as refreshing as if a gallon of the liquid had been consumed.

The great American fault—or one of the greatest—is the consumption of enormous quantities of ice water, which is really a deadly beverage and not fit for civilized man to drink—I emphasize "civilized," for no savage would do anything so stupid as to chill and paralyze the muscles of his stomach in the belief that he is cooling his skin.

The rules, then, are: A little water if the meal is light; a glass of water if the meal is normal, not too cold, and taken at the end of the meal. And thus will you avoid the countless ills to which most drinkers during meals are heir.

RAT HELPS TO RAISE FLAG.
Little Animal Did the Work of Expert
"Steeple Jack."

The hazardous but lucrative trade of "Steeple Jack" has been usurped in Jersey by a small white rat.

Ex-Sergeant Condit, a wealthy resident of Vernon, recently gave a birthday party to a dozen young friends of his nine-year-old son.

When he attempted to celebrate the occasion by raising an American flag to the top of the 30-foot flagstaff that had stood on his lawn for years the pulley rope broke. The pole was set afoul to permit of easy climbing and a goodly share of romance and humor.

The principal article is contributed by Ralph D. Paine, and under the title of "Over the Florida Keys by Rail," tells the story of the conception and execution of Flagler's great plan to join Key West to the mainland by a "seagoing railway."

The February Smart Set.

A strong novel dealing with political and social life in Washington is the leading feature of the February Smart Set. The story is entitled "The Reaping," and is written by Mary Imay Taylor, whose past work has gained her an enviable place among fiction writers. A woman possessed of unusual beauty and endless ambition is the central figure of this absorbing tale. There are several minor characters whom Miss Taylor draws with a deft hand, and anyone who knows the fascinating life of the capital city will be amazed at the author's keen sense of observation.

Twenty-six new bills were put in the Senate hopper Monday. One of them makes burglary a capital offense and another turns the dog loose.

The negro hung at Dothan, Ala., by a mob was cut down by the sheriff before life was extinct and will recover.

Senate bill No. 77, by Senator Watson, makes complete and radical changes in the present common school system.

Senator Watson beat Senator Rives to it in offering the bill to put Kentucky on a dry basis by a constitutional amendment. Senator Rives is not so fast as some, but he generally gets there all the same.

Not much credence is given to the sensational story sent out from Rio Janeiro that anarchists were thwarted in a plot to blow up one or more of the American battleships in that harbor.

The first thing P. J. Brown asked for, upon being released from a Nevada mine after having been buried 46 days, was a chew of tobacco. And just to think of all the good tobacco that was being wasted in Kentucky while this poor fellow was under ground!

John Feland seems to be standing in with the press boys at Frankfort. It is a dull day when the gentleman from Christian does not get himself mentioned in some way.

The sub-committee of the Democratic Committee now at Denver is highly pleased with the preparations for entertaining the national convention in June. The auditorium is now under construction.

Senator Frank Rives got one of his fingers hurt in the railroad wreck at Bagdad Monday. Let us hope that the injured finger is not the one with which he feels the public pulse in his district.

Harry Thaw is evidently not so insane as his lawyers would have it appear. He insisted upon having his wife play to a full house when telling her dramatic story that hung the jury before.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has held the new 2-cent rate law unconstitutional, by a vote of four to three.

Ernesto Nathan, a Jew, has been elected mayor of Rome. He was born in England, educated at Oxford and is Past Master of a Masonic Grand Lodge.

Mr. C. M. Barnett, in his own newspaper, the Hartford Herald, states that he has resigned the presidency of the A. S. of E. to take effect Feb. 25.

A negro was lynched at Dothan, Ala., Sunday night by 200 masked men. He had shot and wounded a white man.

Three miners—A. D. Bailey, P. J. Brown and Fred McDonald—were rescued Sunday after having been 46 days in a caved-in mine at Ely, Nev., 1085 feet below the surface of the earth. A six-inch water pipe remained open and through this they were fed by lowering food and drink until the debris was removed. Two other men with them were killed.

The National Independent Telephone Association, which is to meet in Chicago today, has made known its intentions of discussing, at least, and stopping if possible, the requests of the operators to call patrons in the early mornings. In a number of the Northern cities the requests have been refused. The Bell company has objected strenuously to the custom.

INCORPORATION LAW

Amendments Suggested and Where the Newspapers Also Come In.

MR. EDITOR:

You are doubtless familiar with the State law requiring that the word "Incorporated" be placed on all stationery and advertisements used by incorporated concerns in this State. As a printer and a publisher, you know what was intended as a safeguard to protect legitimate merchants against unscrupulous persons who might be shielding themselves behind privileges extended to corporations, has in its practical workings proven a hardship on the honest merchants and manufacturers of this State.

The law governing corporations is a good one in the main, and the feature of it pertaining to the use of the word "incorporated" is all right insofar as it requires the word to be placed on all bill heads, letter heads and statements, also on the sign at the place of business, but to require that it shall appear on all newspaper advertisements, and advertising matter of all sorts, cards, circulars, or what not, is an utterly useless requirement, entails a hardship upon all advertisers and profits nobody but the county and district prosecutors.

It is a source of embarrassment and annoyance to all newspapers who publish advertisements, often occasioning them a loss of business and sometimes loss in damages.

Last summer, the writer took this matter up with some wholesale merchants in Louisville, and House Bill No. 57 (Kinkead) is the resulting amendment asked for, and embraces the following changes:

First—that the abbreviation "Inc." be acceptable.

Second—that this "Inc." be used "in conjunction with," instead of "under" the firm name.

Third—that it is to be used only on bill heads, letter heads, statements, and the sign at the places of business.

Fourth—that the maximum penalty be $100.

These changes are conservative, do not affect the intent or meaning of the law, save a deal of unnecessary worry to both merchant and printer and for these reasons, the aid of the newspapers is invoked in securing its passage.

Respectfully,

GEO. E. CARY.

SKIRTS FOR WINTER.

New Garments are Made in Three or Four Ways.

Skirts are made in one of three or four different ways. But just for the moment, the favorite is the plaited straight skirt. But it all depends upon the material after all and the fancy plaited skirt with the plait set in below the hips is a model that is much worn.

Where materials will permit the red skirt is popular, and the skirt, consisting of two deep ruffles, each one-half the depth of the skirt, is selected as the model in soft silks and poplins.

The green gored empire skirt is one of the best models for a plain walking skirt. It is fitted around the hips, but spreads widely below. It is made without ornamentation of any kind, but is finished with two or three plain bands around the foot. These bands are of velvet, sewed upon the upper edge only, so as to set out well and make a good finish for the skirt.

The five gored skirt is one of the popular designs, but it needs to be trimmed, and the lace, handsome border of heavy lace around the bottom is a favorite way of trimming this style of skirt. Still another popular method is that of applying a ruffle about a foot wide with a heading of lace, and a piping of silk, or some flat velvet band.

The fitted skirt is much in evidence, and there are skirts that are made with the plait turning back sharply from the front. They are wide and so arranged as to leave a very broad front panel, which is ornamented in some manner. This wide front panel may be trimmed with lace or with a braid.

The use of lace upon winter skirts may seem a questionable stretch of appropriateness, yet when one sees the beautiful winter gowns that are trimmed with lacy materials one is forced to change one's mind as to the use of lace upon winter gowns. Many of the handsomest winter costumes are trimmed with lacey materials. Lace dyed can look better than lace worn in black and white are all much worn.

The mixed fabrics are so pretty that they need little or no decoration, and many of the dressmakers absolutely refuse to trim them in anyway, declaring that it spoils a woman's lines to break up the pattern with trimming.

Making Plumes New.

Ostrich feathers which have been in use for some time often require reshaping as well as recurling. The quill of the feather should be held in the steam of a fast-boiling kettle until it is perfectly pliable. It may then be straightened out flat on a board and planed down until dry, or curled round a linen collar if a rounded effect is required.

One clever woman has even dyed her plumes.

They were a delicate blue until the summer sun turned them white. Dyeing them blue again she simply mixed them with a strong solution of oil paint tube to give the desired shade. Into this they were dipped. After that they were shaken gently and hung on the clothesline by the tip ends. When dry they were well shaken. The ends may be curled, if one prefers, by simply drawing the fronds between the finger and a dull knife.

FRENCH BELTS.

Parisians are wearing very elaborate leather belts, the leather being much tooled and gilded after the fashion of old bindings, having solid gold buckles. With an ingenious idea of effect many women are wearing them next to front, the gold buckle coming in front, while the narrower one, with its holes for adjusting, goes at the back. This plan gives a pretty sloping line to the waist. The striped leather belt is very fashionable for the moment. The belts are of white silk and the stripes, about half an inch wide, run across. They have nothing at the back, and are fastened in front with a wide square or Byzantine buckle of bronze or gold.

RIBBON TRIMMINGS.

For trimming children's afternoon dresses ribbons will be used a great deal. A last year's dress can be made to look like new if ribbon is skillfully used. Velvet, satin, gros-grain, and taffeta ribbons are the ones used. The trimming can be put on in almost any way one wishes.

Another trimming is plaid material. A dress of plaid can be trimmed with bias plaid or check material of some contrasting shades.

Braids are particularly fashionable for trimming both adults and children's dresses, and they are seen in many beautiful varieties.

Hat Trimming Hint.
The most flowers and hats are becoming hackneyed, but the idea is still being carried out by the milliners, as it has met with so much favor.

The simple field blossoms and grasses look quite exquisite in conjunction with new felt hats, of rich butter color. White hats are still seen with a sprig of pink or purple rooster's feathers.

Velvet ribbon is making its appearance as a hat trimming, and it is very successful when mingled with illusion net. Brims are lined with colored or black silk, or else a little bias covers the edge.

OVERCASTING OF SLEEVES.

To overcast the sleeves and hems at the same time was the invention of one woman who was pressed for time. By overcasting the sleeves the hems was avoided and there were no basting threads to pull out. Sleeves put in this manner are easier to stitch on the machine.

entirely avoided in its manufacture, chemically pure glycerine being found to serve the purpose of extracting and preserving the medicinal properties even better than alcohol.

Learn the Truth. The one sure cure for the cure of a woman's peculiar weakness and ailments, the ingredients of which are contained in the wrapper of every bottle leaving the great Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y., where it is made and sold DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION.

It Stands Alone not only in respect to its ingredients, but also to the only specific advertisement made for women's health which absolutely CONTAINS NO ALCOHOL.

It Stands Alone as the one specific remedy for women's health which makes of which tell their patients fully into their confidence and tell them exactly what they are taking. This "Favorable Prescription" is made from such ingredients and after a working formula that has thousands of satisfied users, including physicians and other critics.

It Stands Alone as Nature's cure for the diseases prevalent among women because it contains the vegetable growth.

Mrs. Mary J. Beard (Trained Nurse, Washington Hospital), of 1705 9th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have had many terrible pains at times and was often unable to be about attending to my duties because of pain in my abdomen. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorable Prescription and decided to try it. Am certainly glad that I did. The results were wonderful. I am now well and can enjoy life once more."

Dr. Pierce's Good temper is the best guarantee of good health and good health is largely a matter of health of the body and mind. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are safe and speedy, and once taken do not have to be taken again. They are made with Golden Seal root, Lady's Slipper root and Unicorn root. Thus, there is no mystery in the make-up of this famous "Prescription." The use of alcohol is entirely avoided.

How Nature Provides. OUR BEAUTY, HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

Is it not possible if not probable that what is necessary for the health and beauty of the human body is to be found in the earth, digested in the plant laboratory of nature and made ready for man's consumption?

The medicinal virtues of many American plants and roots were known to the early Indians, who used a root known to the Indians as "Blue Cohosh" as a medicine.

Another known to the Indians as "Indian Root" is used in modern medicine as "Cinchona."

From King's American Dispensary, an article on Cinchona states:

"The Indians set a high value on Battie root (Black Cohosh) in diseases of women, and in other diseases of the womb.

Local Leaflets

It's about time to trim your grape vines and plant your early tomato seed.

Unquestionably the mildest winter ever known by the present generation.

How long before we will have an entertainment of some kind by local talent at the Opera House?

Wonder if Manager McPherson is going to get up a Spring Music Festival this year?

Sections of brick sidewalks on several principal streets will have to be relaid in the spring.

The predicted slump in prices of family supplies has not yet struck Hopkinsville, but everybody is wishing it would.

He is not a wise man who would bet that 1908 will be a fine fruit year. The chances are all against our having any fruit at all.

There will be a Christian Endeavor social at the First Presbyterian church tonight and a prize will be awarded for the best original poem on "Leap Year."

A bird's eye view of Hopkinsville would show a great deal of mud on the streets; but just at this season of the year it is impossible to remove the mud as fast as it accumulates.

We haven't the statistics at hand to prove it, but we believe we are safe in asserting that for several months the death's in the city and county have exceeded the births.

If you do not sleep well at night on account of your business being dull, the best remedy in the world is a $10 dose of judicious advertising. Repeat the dose and you will soon rest without trouble. Cure guaranteed.

Is the boy the boy who is given a nickel to spend in S. S. and has it changed into coppers and spends 4 cents for candy a born financier? If so, Wall street will hear from several Hopkinsvillians some of the future days of "frenzied finance."

Tuesday night was a notable one at the Christian church. The "parlor and kitchen shower" supplied the ladies of the church with more needed things than had been asked. A "hot feature" of the evening was the presentation of a gas stove for the kitchen by twenty-five young men of the church.

The bodies of Peter Caplett and Miss Annie Marrier, who were drowned while skating on a pond at Worcester, Mass., on Saturday, were found Sunday. It is thought that they skated into open water in the dark. When found the young people were clasped in each other's arms. They were to have been married in a fortnight.

AMUSEMENTS
The next attraction at Holland's Opera House will be the musical comedy, "The Messenger Boy."

There is nothing in the local bookings for the current season that will attract the interest of playgoers to a greater extent than "The Lion and the Mouse," which Henry B. Harris will present here in the very near future, and which comes with an endorsement that has not hitherto been vouchsafed any production of recent year. Charles Klein wrote the play and when Henry B. Harris gave New Yorkers the opportunity of viewing it they liked it so well that it ran for two years at the Lyceum Theatre in that city. The Boston judgment was expressed in crowded houses for eight months, and for the twenty-five weeks it ran in Chicago the attendance exceeded anything in the history of Chicago theatres.
